When it's done right leadership transforms individuals, teams, organizations and society. Ethical leadership requires us to be accountable not only for what we do, but how we do it. It requires people of great character to address the many challenges that will arise.

Please share your thoughts on what leadership means to you and what responsibility you believe you will have as a leader. Your essay should include, but is not limited to responses to the following questions:

- In your view, what characteristics does a good leader exhibit and practice?
- What does ethical leadership mean to you and how would you practice it?
- Low income, entry level employees are the most vulnerable to changing economic conditions. How would your leadership address the viability of their positions, personal development, and potential social supports needed?
